

Mike Napier - Head of Real Estate, Shell International

Mike Napier is the Group Head of Real Estate for Shell. Mike has been with Shell for 22 years in a variety of procurement, commercial and leadership roles across all the major lines of business, in eight different countries and six continents. This international experience, plus his degrees in Law and Business are now being applied to the Corporate Real Estate function in Shell, where he's held the senior leader position for seven years. During this time, the real estate team has grown into a global, professional and well-respected function with a close working relationship with Shell's business stakeholders. The current focus is on value extraction, right-sizing the global portfolio and developing sustainable solutions across all aspects of the real estate operation.

Mike is British and is based in London. He lives with his wife and two boys in Wiltshire and his interests are all sports, classic and sports cars and architecture.
